David P. Friedman is a Murtha Cullina partner who serves as general counsel to the firm. An accomplished litigator, he represents corporations and individuals in complex commercial and civil cases in state and federal trial and appellate courts as well as in alternative dispute resolution (ADR) proceedings.

Frequently cited as a top-ranked litigator by many of the nation's most prominent legal publications, David represents lawyers, law firms, and owners of small and family-owned businesses. He applies his experience, training and skills to help clients understand their legal positions, prioritize their goals, pursue litigation strategies, and find workable solutions that maximize their resources and minimize their exposure.

David offers the talented counsel clients require when confronted with complex, intractable problems. Honest and forthright, he provides an in-depth, realistic case analysis to his clients and ensures they understand their vulnerabilities and prospects. He regularly handles a wide variety of disputes, including:

- Attorney malpractice claims
- Claims and grievances against attorneys for alleged ethical violations
- Allegations of fraud, theft, breach of fiduciary duties, conspiracy and other alleged improprieties
- Insurance coverage disputes
- Corporate and partnership dissolutions and disputes
- Class action lawsuits
- Contract disputes
- Commercial lease evictions and breaches
- Commercial and residential mortgage foreclosures
- Environmental enforcement actions and other environmental disputes
- Claims due to exposure to mold and other toxic and hazardous substances
- Construction litigation
- Land boundary claims and other real property disputes
- Enforcement of easements and other covenants restricting the use of real estate
- Mechanics lien foreclosures
- Manufacturing and distribution disputes
- Claims for contribution and indemnification

- Claims for breach of non-competition covenants, non-solicitation agreements, confidentiality restrictions and a wide variety of employment matters
- Trade secret claims
- Civil RICO litigation
- Claims alleging unfair trade practices and violations of consumer protection laws

Known for his strong advocacy on behalf of clients in trials and appeals, David is also a veteran of numerous state grievance committee and state agency administrative hearings, arbitrations and mediations. He has represented clients during ADR proceedings and has also acted as a mediator and arbitrator. In addition, he formerly served as an attorney trial referee in the Connecticut Superior Court.
